Perfect Arms and Shoulders, and Other Valuable Hints From Cecelia Santon

or keep beautiful white arms and shoulders. I sacrifice a lot to keep white skin," said Miss Cecelia. "I love the outdoor and I believe in fresh air and sunshine for all growing things, but I have to guard my skin against the sun. I love so dearly. On hot summer days I always wear a big shade hat, for though summer tan may look attractive while it lasts, it leaves a coarser and slightly less white skin in its wake. Burn and tan every summer for five or six years and gradually your skin will lose its fine white texture. I am a firm believer in good cold cream; if I suspect a little tan of having won its way to my face or throat or hands, I immediately dose the offending member in cold cream. At night I always cleanse my skin thoroughly according to the following method: First I apply a generous coating of cold cream, which I rub in thoroughly; next comes a washing in a thick lather made of hot water, castile soap and a few drops of benzoin to make the water soft and leaving to the arms wide massage with the finger tips and a dash of cold water or a rubbing with ice to make the tissues firm and healthy, and my face, neck, arms and shoulders are cleansed for the night.

Simple Exercises.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy that Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier is most active in its influence. There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that they select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if you blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Helping Marriage Game

Many Parents Mistakenly Think They Are Aiding Daughter, but Only Hamper Her.

By Dorothy Dix.

A GREAT many parents wonder why their daughters do not marry. They see other girls not half so pretty nor attractive as their own, settling themselves comfortably in life with husbands and homes while their own daughters are headed for the spinster's retreat, and they puzzle their brains why this is thus, and why one maiden is called to the altar and another left.

And it never occurs to them that they, themselves, are their daughters' matrimonial hoodoo. They don't intend to be. Good gracious, no! Far from it! They are convinced that matrimony is the predestined career for a woman, and that the wedding bell is about the surest dinner bell that ever rings for a girl. Take the case, for instance, in which the family constitutes itself a committee of criticism that sits in judgment upon every young man that comes to the house and tears him limb from limb. Is any youth going to subject himself to that ordeal if he knows it? Is any girl going to stand for having her men friends vivisectioned if she can help it?

Not much. We are all human and we've all got faults and foibles, but we don't care to have them discussed and ridiculed, nor do we enjoy having our friends made the target for the near-wit, even of our own family.

A Puzzle.

I know a beautiful and charming young girl who is much admired by men, who are much puzzled as to why she never invites them to call upon her at her home, though she evidently enjoys their society elsewhere, and who wonder why, when they suggest coming to see her, that she always makes some excuse to prevent their doing so. The real reason is because her family consider every man that has as their game. Only let a man come to see her and they make merry over his every peculiarity. They imitate his walk and his mannerism and turn him into such a figure of fun that it has made the girl have a perfect horror of having a man come to see her and thus offering him up as a fresh victim.

The family think all of this a merry jest, but about ten years from now, when Sadie's beauty begins to fade, and they realize that she is still hanging on the parent bough, the fact that they kept her from marrying, by making her afraid to have a man come to see her, won't seem so funny. But that's just what they're doing. Family criticism explains why there's many an old maid.

Another reason why girls don't marry is because they have the misfortune to have parents who are hindrances instead of helps. Before you can pull off a success at anything you've got to have a good chance to do it, and this is an true of matrimony as of business. A girl can't marry unless she has the opportunity, and it is up to her parents to provide that opportunity.

Many Ways.

This can be done in many ways; by letting a girl go to places where she will meet eligible men, by giving her the best clothes that can be afforded, because her youth is the sunshine in which a girl must make her matrimonial hay, and chiefly by making the home such a pleasant place that men will like to come to it.

Yet there are mothers and fathers who make every young man who comes to the house feel as if he was an interloper, or a burglar.

Another reason why so many girls are old maids is because their parents haven't enough sense to get out of the way and give a man a chance to make love. How can a fellow have the nerve to make love to a girl when father is sitting by the drop light, not six feet away, reading the evening paper, and mother and aunt Jane are gossiping within earshot, and little brother is listening behind the portiere?

They Forget.

Every man and woman must remember how they acted in their own courtship days, and yet in spite of this you will hear a father say that he is not going to let Sally and her fool beau drive him out of his own favorite chair in his own sitting room. Very well. Let him stick to it if he wants Sally to be an old maid and to have to support her instead of her having a husband to do it.

Of course, the architects that arrange modern flats don't take love making into account. They crowd the little winged god out, which is perhaps one reason why there's less matrimony in cities than there is in the country and small town.

The moral of all of which is that if you want your girls to marry you must give them a chance. You must help along the love game, not strangle it in its way.

PECOS FAIR IS TO

START NEXT TUESDAY

Pecos, Tex., Sept. 12.—General preparations for the holding of the fair at Pecos beginning Tuesday are being pushed. The race track is being enlarged and improved; the grounds have been changed to include more territory, and numbers of improvements have been made to the buildings and stands. The carnival company engaged for the four days is said to be one of the best that has ever been booked in the state. It will ship out of Anson, Texas, in time to arrive here Monday.

Those in charge of the agricultural displays state that there will be a good showing made in this department. The liberal purses hung up for the harness and running events on the track have brought some likely looking horses here, and already each evening sees several sage warming up on the ellipse.

Events will open Tuesday with the annual old settlers' reunion and barbecue. Long trenches have been run along the walk by the court house, and will be on hand in a satisfying plente. The crowd will be fed in the good old western style at long tables on the court house lawn.

CECELIA SANTON and I met in a manager's office. All about us were quartered oak and heavy carpets, and all the unattractive paraphernalia of utility and business. Little atmosphere or charm for the beautification of a dainty girl—and yet from the dull work a day environment little Miss Cecelia shone with the splendor of youth and health and the clean sweetness of modest girlhood.

Miss Santon was the little prima donna of B. A. Rolfe's "Arcadia" last spring, but now she is intrepidly venturing out on the B. F. Keith circuit alone, with full faith in her voice, her public and her manager, Fred Ward.

"Don't you think," she asked, "that if a girl is ready to give affection to the world it must like her a little bit too?"

"You open a field for our discussion," answered the always ready for business interviewer, "we can discuss the beauty of being in sympathy with the world—of being in tune with life."

"Perhaps I have not thought about it very philosophically. But I think you have to keep yourself well and in good condition and free from tiredness or nervousness or brain fog. It does not do to be forever making excuses for not being quite at your best.

"You have to make it your business to be at your best. I think a young girl who is trying to accomplish anything in the world whether it is in the line of work or just winning a reputation as a beauty, has to keep rig that the thing she is striving for and never lose sight of what she wants. I guess earnestness of purpose would be my rule of success."
